

The Center for Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics (STEM) Education at UNC Charlotte and Center for Education in STEM at UNC Wilmington would like to congratulate all of the North Carolina students who entered the 2016 NC Junior Science and Humanities Symposium held Monday, March 21, 2016. The top two oral presentation winners and three poster presentation winners will be advancing to the national Junior Science and Humanities Symposium competition to be held April 27-30, 2016 in Dayton, Ohio.

NC Junior Science and Humanities Symposium

March 20 & 21, 2016

Oral Presentation Winners

First Place: Sharon Chen, North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics

Second Place: Joshua Zhou, North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics

Third Place: Caroline Murphy, Stuart W. Cramer High School

Teacher Award

Dr. Myra Halpin, North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics

Poster Presentation Winners

First Place: Arjun Bhatt, North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics

Second Place: Amanda Li, North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics

Third Place: Kevin Jin, William A. Hough High School Charlotte